How To Grow Gladioli for Bloom and for Bulbs

---

GLADIOLI will grow and produce fine bloom grown in any soil that will produce a good garden crop, the more sand in the soil the better, the more clay, the poorer. If the soil must be fertilized, let it be done in the fall. Fresh manure will (scald) the bulbs if it comes in contact with them.

Set the bulbs 4 or 5 inches deep and 4 inches apart. By planting them deep there is less likelihood of them falling down at blooming time and will stand drouth better. By planting bulbs every 10 days after the danger of frost is over, until July you will have full bloom till frost. Keep the weeds out. Keep a dust mulch around the plants in dry weather. Do not water Gladioli except in extreme dry weather and at blooming time for the reason if you begin watering you must keep it up until the season is over. Cut the spike when the first bud is unrolled. Leave 3 or 4 leaves to help mature the bulb, cut off half an inch of spike when renewing the water each morning—nearly all the buds will open and you will have a beautiful boquet for 10 days. The bulbs should be taken up in October before the ground freezes and dried thoroughly. Cut the foliage close to the bulb. When dry, store them in a cellar away from frost and not too dry a place.

If these instructions are followed, the bulbs will give you the best results for several years.

You can break off the old roots any time before planting.
